Born to Storms*:

Set in the 2020s, a young woman, supported by an Artificial Intelligence, driven from her home by storms and rising seas, embarks on a life-affirming struggle to find and support many people in action on our climate crisis.

To summarize our talk:

- Our climate crisis is real and it will define the 21st century.
- We need stories to teach our young people what to do.
  - Societies have always used stories for this very purpose.
- One critically needed story is a Hero's Journey.
- Born to Storms is that story for today.

Born to Storms is now complete as a fifty-six thousand word novel; it has been professionally proofed; and we even have the cover art.

We are confident that our story could serve as the basis of a great TV series and we will not stop until we achieve that end. An expression of interest from some of the participants of this conference could be a big step in making this happen.

We will continue our work on the Web, like this Baliwoodland meeting, in order to make a positive contribution to addressing our climate crisis.

Janet A and Tom Riley
TomRiley@bigmoondig.com

Project Web Site:
https://bigmoondig.com/Stories/BMDStoriesBtS.html